

TENTATIVE MEETING PROGRAMME

EXPLORING OPTIONS FOR MAKING PROGRESS ON AGRICULTURAL MARKET ACCESS AND DOMESTIC SUPPORT

The Doha Round Negotiations, suspended in July 2006, may resume in early 2007. There are a number of outstanding issues in the agricultural negotiations, in particular in the market access and domestic support pillars, which require solutions for the Round to come to a successful conclusion. Please join ICTSD and IPC for a discussion intended to explore a range of potential solutions, which negotiators could resort to as negotiations resume.

Venue: Hotel Victoria, Glion, Switzerland
2007

Date: 21 - 23 January

21 Jan. 19:30 P.M.	DINNER RECEPTION Welcoming dinner hosted by the organisers.
22 January 2007
09:00 - 09:15	WELCOMING REMARKS Mr. Piet BUKMAN, IPC Chairman Mr. Ricardo MELENDEZ-ORTIZ, Chief Executive, ICTSD
09:15 – 09:35	SESSION I: MARKET ACCESS FLEXIBILITIES  This session will explore how to find the proper balance between market access flexibility and market opening. It will examine the extent to which market access flexibilities will affect export opportunities for particular products in particular markets, by looking at trade between developing countries as well as between developed and developing countries. It will also explore issues around protection from import surges and price depression, and effective protection for vulnerable farmers.  OVERVIEW OF MARKET ACCESS ISSUES TO BE RESOLVED  A succinct outline of possible approaches to move forward the debate on these wide-ranging and often contentious issues.  Mr. Mike GIFFORD IPC member; former Canadian chief negotiator
09:35 – 10:00	EXPANDING EXPORT OPPORTUNITIES IN DEVELOPED AND DEVELOPING COUNTRY EMERGING MARKETS  What are the concerns that exporters have with the market access negotiations, and how could these be addressed? Are US Concerns about the “black box:” a question of principle or specific export interests?  Mr. Leonard CONDON IPC member; Vice President, Altria International Business Relations; former Assistant USTR for Agriculture

10:00 – 10:25 SOUTH-SOUTH TRADE AND MARKET ACCESS FLEXIBILITIES: DEVELOPING COUNTRY CONCERNS

What have been the major trends over the last ten years in South-South trade? Which products are most heavily traded between developing countries, and which countries are the main importers and exporters? What are the real barriers to enhanced market access? Which products are most likely to be designated as Special Products?

Ms. Mareike MEYN

Research Officer in the International Economic Development Group (IEDG) at the Overseas Development Institute (ODI) London

10:25 – 10:45 COFFEE/TEA BREAK

10:45– 11:10 SENSITIVE PRODUCTS

What is the magnitude and number of tariff peaks in EU / G10 countries, and to what extent does the designation of sensitive products in EU / G10 countries affect market access for developed and developing countries? What are the implications of designating as sensitive products those products which enjoy high levels of domestic support? Should WTO Members consider establishing selection criteria for these products? What percentage of tariff lines should countries be allowed to protect in this way, and how should such tariff lines be treated? How much flexibility does the EU have on sensitive products?

Mr. Harry DE GORTER,

Cornell University

Mr. Will MARTIN

World Bank

11:10 – 12:30 OPEN DISCUSSION

Mr. Rolf MOEHLER, IPC member, Former Deputy Director-General for Agriculture of the European Commission.

14:00 – 14:40 MARKET ACCESS FLEXIBILITIES FOR DEVELOPING COUNTRIES AND DOMESTIC POLICY MEASURES FOR SUBSISTENCE FARMERS

What kinds of trade and non-trade policies should be put into place to assist subsistence farmers?

Mr. Anwarul HODA

Member of the Planning Commission and former Deputy Director General of the WTO.

Mr. Ralf PETERS

Economic Affairs Officer, UNCTAD

14:40 – 15:05 IMPORT SURGES IN DEVELOPING COUNTRIES

What are the reasons for import surges? What are the main issues around injury and attribution? What does empirical evidence from the last 10 years tell us about selected developing countries and commodities?

Mr. Jamie MORRISON

Food and Agriculture Organisation (FAO)

- 15:05 – 15:30 THE USE OF INDICATORS FOR THE SELECTION OF SPECIAL PRODUCTS
Realistic options to select special products based on practical indicators, numerical targets or a combination of both? What are the challenges facing developing countries in using indicators of food security, Livelihood security and rural development (types of indicators, data availability)?
Mr. Anura HERATH
Ministry of Agriculture and Livestock, Sri Lanka
- 15:30 – 16:00 SSM SIMULATIONS: MEASURING THE EFFECTIVENESS OF THE NEW SPECIAL SAFEGUARD MECHANISM IN SELECTED COUNTRIES
How often would the SSM be triggered according to the various scenarios foreseen in the modalities currently under negotiation? What does evidence on selected products in selected countries tell us about the extent to which these modalities would be effective in preventing the adverse impacts of price depression and import surges?
Mr. Raul MONTEMAYOR
IPC member; Federation of Free Farmers Cooperatives, Philippines
- 16:00 – 17:30 OPEN DISCUSSION

EXPLORING OPTIONS FOR MAKING PROGRESS ON AGRICULTURAL MARKET ACCESS AND DOMESTIC SUPPORT

---

SESSION II: DOMESTIC SUPPORT

OUTSTANDING ISSUES IN OVERALL LEVEL OF TRADE DISTORTING SUPPORT; BLUE BOX DISCIPLINES; PRODUCT-SPECIFIC CAPS; AND REVIEW OF GREEN
BOX CRITERIA

This session will explore possible options for crafting effective disciplines in domestic support that could complement the market access side and avoid creating new loopholes.

09:00 – 10:30

THE U.S. FARM BILL: WHAT TO EXPECT

Prospects for a new farm bill in terms of product coverage, distribution, amounts and types of programmes. What are the prospects of existing legislation being extended, and what are the prospects of it being reformed? How do the results of the November 2006 congressional elections affect the prospects for the farm bill?

Mr. Henry SCHMICK

Agricultural Attaché, Permanent Mission of the United States to the WTO

10:30 – 11:00

PRODUCT SPECIFIC CAPS ON DOMESTIC SUPPORT

Moving beyond the current debate on levels of overall trade-distorting support, this session will address product-specific amber box subsidies, and the need to narrow down the discussion on key products to be targeted for reduction in the U.S. and the E.U.? How should such products be defined, and what mechanisms should be put in place to address them?

Mr. Marcos JANK and Mr. André NASSAR

Instituto de Estudos do Comércio e Negociações Internacionais (ICONE)

11:00 – 11:15

COFFEE/TEA BREAK

11:15 – 11:45

THE BLUE BOX

What additional criteria might be established for blue box subsidies? Should there be a product-specific cap? Which are the products most likely to benefit from blue box subsidies? How could their trade-distorting impact be reduced?

Mr. Rajesh AGGARWAL

International Trade Centre, Geneva

11:45 – 12:15

TRADE AND DEVELOPMENT IMPLICATIONS OF AGRICULTURE SUBSIDIES IN THE WTO GREEN BOX<sup>1</sup>

What are the opportunities presented by the mandated review of green box criteria? How can the shift from amber to green box support be encouraged while effectively addressing concerns about possible trade distorting effects of green payments? What can be achieved in the present round of trade negotiations, and what could governments choose to postpone as part of a built-in agenda?

Tim JOSLING

IPC member; Stanford University
